Mr. Winston Churchill, who is now well Mr. Wisson Churchil, who is now wen known to English-speaking people general-ly through his romantic historical novel, "Richard Carvel," will give a further de-velopment of the "Cavalier" idea in "The Crisis," which, illustrated by Maxfield Parrish, will come from the press of the Macmillan Company in the course of the next few months. In "Richard Carvel" the auther treated of the origin and character of the Cavaller in Maryland, and in "The Crisis" he takes up the Cavaller's history nearly a century later. About 200 years after Naseby and Marston Moor, the wo branches of the Anglo-Saxon race, the Puitans of New England and the Cavaller of Maryland, Virginia and the South, again clashed in the Middle West. The scene of the crisis is laid mostly in St. Louis. Such historical characters as Lincoln, Grant and Sherman are introduced. The love stoy is said to be intricate, and at the same time sympathetically told.

The third edition of "A Friend of Caesar," by William Stearns Davis, was based on July 30. As a first novel by a very young man such a reception may fairly be called remarkable. Critics have classed this story a Pagan counterpart to "Que Vadis," and have compared it with Canon Farrar's famous book also. In reality, however, it stands alone in its treatment of the human side of the last days of the Roman Republie. The Macmillan Company have a fourth Political and social conditions in Italy are a subject of special interest since the as-sassination of King Humbert, and Doctor William Barry, author of "The Two Standards," has thrown a flood of light upon it in "Arden Massiter." The Italy of to-day is pictured in that romance by one who knew Rome even before the temporal power of the Pope was overthrown. The riotous overturning of a Ministry is one of the incidents of the story, and readers intimate with recent Italian history do not hesitate to identify some of the leading characters with priests and politicians of more than national repute. "What makes the book especially timely," says the New York Herald, "is the character of the leader of the Camorra society, who has many of the qualities which American papers are now scribing to the mysterious Malatesta,

The possibilities of the "animal story" are remarkably well shown by Mr. W. A. Fraser in his new tales, entitled "Mooswa of the Boundaries." Each of the tales teems with curious bits of wood-lore and littleknown facts about the moose, beaver, bear, McClure, Phillips & Co. have required the publication rights of a remarkable book which claims Abraham Lincoln as its thor. It is a small scrapbook compiled by Lincoln for use in the political campaign of 1858, and it contains, so Lincoln writes in "the substance of all I have ever said about negro equality," with explanatory notes and a long letter in Lincoln's handwriting. The book was made up because in senatorial contest then being carried on the opponents of Lincoln were continually misstating his views on the slavery question. The contest was very bitter, Most of Lincoln's friends and neighbors-indeed the majority of the citizens of Sangamon County-were former Kentuckians, and, while they did not believe in slavery as an institution, they did most strongly object to negro equality. One of Lincoln's supporters, Captain Brown, was also a candidate for political honors, and it was to him that Lincoln gave this little book, Captain Brown used the book in '58 and '60, and on his death it passed to his sons, with whom its present publication has been arranged.

"The Life of John Paul Jones," by Augustus C. Buell, which Charles Scribner's Sons have in preparation for a two-volume edition, will represent the result of four-teen years' researches in England, France and St. Petersburg, as well as in this country. It is entirely compiled from original sources-Jones's journals and letters, contemporary pamphiets, newspapers and memoirs. It is a fact little known that after the American Revolution John Paul served for several years as an Admiral in the Russian Navy and was finally retired on a pension, which, however, he never re-ceived. The work in preparation reveals many hitherto unknown chapters of this remarkable career, including a description of those last sad days in Paris and of his final burial place. Mr. Buell has occupied for several years a prominent position with Cramps of Philadelphia, and it was while representing this firm in Russia that he discovered many new facts in connection with John Paul's service in the im-

SHIRT-WAIST MAN WELCOME.

Judge Sidener Says His Court Is Open to Him.

Judge George B. Sidener of the First District Police Court yesterday announced his intention of opening his court to the shirtwaist man. Beginning this morning attorwater man. Beginning tols morning attor-neys, deputy marshais, defendants, newspa-per reporters and all who have business in the court may appear in shirt waists without coats.

It is understood, however, that the men must wear belts, and neat collars and neck-

Judge Sidener said that if the weather continued to grow any warmer he would adopt the idea himself. When the court is opened this morning to the new fad it will be an innovation. Never before, according to the venerable members of the bar, has any St. Louis court allowed the coatless man within its walls while court was in session.

"I think the idea a most sensible one," "I think the idea a most sensible one." said Judge Sidener yesterday to a Republic reporter, "and there is no reason why it should not come to stay. I don't know why a man should swelter for the sake of a mistaken idea about 'form.' I believe a man should dress neatly, but comfortably. I believe there should be respect for a court, but I don't believe persons should make themselves uncomfortable to do it.

"The shirt waist is heat and dressy when worn correctly and there appears no reason why it should not be in good form. Women appear in court every day in shirt waists and nothing is thought of it. Why should they be allowed more privileges than men? they be allowed more privileges than men There is no need for men to swelter and I will welcome the shirt waist. I mean men who wear neat fitting shirt waists with belts to hold up their trousers."

ITALIANS TO HONOR THEIR DEAD KING TO-MORROW.

SOLEMN HIGH MASS TO BE CELEBRATED.

Parade to Be Given in Which Several Societies Will Participate.

Elaborate preparations have been made for the celebration of the solemn requiem mass which will be sung to-morrow morning in the Italian Catholic Church at Nineteenth and Morgan streets in memory of the assassinated King Humbert of Italy. All the Italian societies of St. Louis will participate in the services and a large choir has been drilled especially for the occasion, which will sing the masterpieces of the Italian composers. The church will be draped in black and purple.

Father Cesare Spicardl, rector of the church, will be in charge of the religious part of the programme, and Cavallier Ginnocchio, the local consular agent, has charge of that part in which the Italian socleties take part.

The organizations which will participate are the Italian-American Cavalry, a social and military organization; the North American Italian Society, a benevolent association; the United Brotherhood of Italy, a patriotic and mutual benevolent association, and the Anita Garibaldi Society.

The latter has a social see in Cheltenham. Membership in it is open to any Italian or American of approved morals. It has absolutely no political complexion. Its purposes are the improvement and progress of the people. Since the death of the King the flag on the social see in Cheltenham has been at half-mast.

The president of the society, A. Brissasco said yesterday: "While of course the great patriot Garibaldi believed in Republics and their liberal form of government, he was not a demagogue. We stand for his sentiments. That is why we enter heartily in the exercises in honor of our dead King. We loved him as he loved his people. "King Humbert was the royal master who left his palace when the awful plague descended on the people of Naples and he was, perhaps, the only one of the nobles of the nation who visited the homes of his stricken people, and tended to their wants with his own hands. Our society works for the emancipation of the people from ignorance, but we cannot find words strong enough to condemn any Italian in this city who is glad that the King is dead. There is no punishment too severe for the dastardly assassin who struck down the just King who has done so much for the people. We will take part in the mourning services with sincere sadness in our hearts." Pelo Notole, J. Camolli and Lan Caran zaro, a committee of Italians, having charge of the parade Sunday in memory of King Humbert, are anxious to get every Italian Humbert, are anxious to get every Italian in the city in line. The committee called at the Fourt Courts yesterday afternoon to ask Chief of Police Campbell to issue an order that no peddlers be allowed to sell their wares in the streets Sunday. Thus they hope to compel the attendance of all the Italians. Chief Campbell told the committee he did not know that he had the authority to issue such an order, but he would take the matter under consideration.

Superintendent. ANOTHER PUMP IN OPERATION

City Engineers Trying to Give Better Water Service.

Chief Engineer Gillespie and Principal Assistant Engineer Russell of the Waterworks Department passed the major portion of yesterday morning in examining into the causes of the poor water service in the low pressure districts, especially in the Garrison Addition and other neighborhoods lying just beyond the high-pressure mains. "This summer," said Mr. Gillesple, "the consumption of water has been enormous and unprecedented. The city uses $5,000,000 gallons every twenty-four hours, whereas the record in former years has not exceeded 75,000,000 each day.

the record in former years has not exceeded 76,000,000 each day.

"We have been pumping about 85,000,000 gallons in the course of twenty-four hours daily, and to-day we started another pump at Bissell's Point, which will have a daily capacity of 5,000,000 gallons. I hope this will have the effect of alleviating the condition of which water consumers complain. I do not think the low water in the Compton Hill reservoir is responsible for the trouble, but we will discover and correct the fault, whatever it is."

Mr. Russell attributes the condition prevailing in the Stoddard Addition to the circumstance that the district is high and cumstance that the district is high and cumstance that the district is high and probably one service pipe went out of use when the high-pressure service was installed in the locality. He thinks the entire locality will eventually be served from the high-pressure mains.

The department was at work early yesterday morning investigating, and the engineers were busy all day studying relevant conditions.
